Headteacher's Comment

As the first half term at Hogarth Primary School comes to an end, it provides us time to reflect upon our successes and ways to continually develop. The new team at Hogarth are working hard to make both the educational and community feel of the school one where children and families feel welcomed and achieve success. Having had the opportunity to spend time in all classes this term, the progress of all children is a delight to see. Their engagement in new curriculum areas, led by an exceptionally talented team of teachers and LSAs, is outstanding. The children are flourishing with a consistent and robust approach, focused upon aiming for excellence which we hope you hear about and experience at home.

The core values of the school (respectful, resilient, reflective and responsible) are being demonstrated throughout the school and in the local community. The children have received high praise when representing the school at festivals and events. The Mayor himself last week commented upon how the ethos of the school has changed since his last visit. We have also noticed that many of our parents are living our school values demonstrating these in and around the school site, which we would always expect. However, I would ask that when talking to staff, we remember that we should always treat others how we wish to be treated ourselves.

Parent's Evening

It has been a privilege to have welcomed so many of you into the school this week, to meet the teachers and discuss your child/ren's progress. What has made me even prouder as the new Headteacher at Hogarth is to witness so many of you leaving with smiles on your faces and receiving many positive comments regarding the school. There are, however, still a number of parents we haven't spoken to. We will follow these meetings up after half term so please contact us to arrange a time to discuss, as we expect 100% attendance. Remember, if you are concerned or worried about your child emotionally or educationally, do not wait until the next parent's evening. Please contact your class teacher via the office to discuss these as soon as they arise.

Homework

I have spoken to a number of parents over the last week regarding homework. At Hogarth our main priorities are Reading and Maths. As such, we need to ensure that every child is reading daily at home and accessing the TTRS maths website (that all children should have a login for). As you can see from the tables we have published recently, we still have many children that are not reading at home. We will, however, set challenges to be completed by those that wish to complete additional work.

This half term, we would like the children to focus on reading. Can the children read a book of their choice in an unusual place? Can they find take a photo and add this to our twitter page? Can the children complete a book review encouraging others to enjoy the same text? Can the children record themselves reading to a member of the family?
